

ABA 601 : Professional Practice in ABA

This course focuses on clinical practice of applied behavior analysis in a variety of settings. Many behavior analysts work as consultants in human service settings, and many others work in settings serving individuals who exhibit difficulties other than developmental disabilities. In addition to the basic principles of applied behavior analysis studied in previous courses, other issues important for behavior analysts to know about to be able to successfully consult and work in settings unrelated to developmental disabilities are examined.

Prerequisites

ABA 501 , ABA 502