

EDU 594 : Research and Evaluation in Education

This course examines data sources and usage for application and evaluation in schools for decision making purposes. Students will utilize data, statistics, and current research to examine school programs, issues and/or topics. In addition to investigating data driven decision making, students will develop, investigate, and present on a topic relevant to their profession.

Credits 3