

HED 508 : Personal Behavior Choice

This course provides an opportunity to explore the full range of personal health concerns of individuals in the United States, especially those issues which can be addressed through health education. In this course, students will examine and develop health education strategies for improving health behavior.