

HSA 530 : Health Economics

This course examines economic models related to: the production of and demand for health; demand for medical care; uncertainty and health insurance; and physician and hospital behavior. In addition, economic issues related to Medicare and Medicaid; health disparities; and health care reform will be discussed. The course includes discussion of recent research on these topics as well as discussions of recent developments in health policy related to these topics.