

RWL 502 : Critical Thinking: Research Into Practice

This course examines current theories, research and effective practices for teaching reading comprehension. Using a constructivist model of understanding, factors influencing students' understanding of text are analyzed. Special attention is given to teaching all students, particularly those with disabilities, in regular classroom settings.